OF THE

CANADIAN ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

TOURISTS from the Orient to Canada, United States, Europe and Around-the-World, travelling via Victoria, Vancouver and the Canadian Pacific Railway, are afforded an opportunity of visiting the

CANADIAN ROCKIES

noted the world over for their picturesque scenery, splendid hotels and the health-giving qualities of the pure air.

At all the resorts facilities are afforded for carriage drives, walking and mountaineering trips, saddle horse trips, camping excursions, etc.

Among the many places of attraction are:

GLACIER—near the Summit of the Selkirk Range, the centre of a group of glaciers, including the Great Illecillewaet and Asulkan Glaciers.
GLACIER—From this point a splendid view is obtainable of MOUNT SIR
DONALD, 10,608 feet high, while Eagle Peak, Mount Abbott, Rogers Pass and the Great Caves of Nakim are easily accessible from the house.

FIELD—situated between Mount Burgess and Mount Stephen (the latter 10,500 feet high), is popularly known as the gateway of the wonderful Yoho Valley. Here are stationed Swiss guides for the benefit of Mountaineers. Delightful drives may also be taken to the Emerald Lake and Takakkaw Falls.

LAGGAN—the station for LAKE LOUISE and the LAKES IN THE CLOUDS, the most enchanting spots in the Rockies. The Valley of the Ten Peaks, Bow Lakes, and the Great Divide are places well worth a visit.
Guides may be engaged to accompany excursion parties to the most interesting points. Carriages meet all trains at Laggan.

BANFF—a charming little town, popularly known as the gateway to the CANADIAN NATIONAL ROCKY MOUNTAIN PARKS, situated in the Bow Valley on the eastern side of the Rockies.
This is an ideal rendezvous for Tourists from all parts of the globe.
NATURAL SULPHUR SPRINGS. THE CAVE, BOW FALLS, THE LOOPS and THE SPRAY RIDE are a few of the many attractions at BANFF HOT SPRINGS. Good boating and fishing are obtainable on the Bow River.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is noted for its comfortable equipment and splendid service. By this route all the principal cities of Canada are reached, and direct connections are made to all the important cities of the United States and Atlantic steamship lines.

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, JUNE 8th, 1912.

The Legislative Council on Thursday postponed the Bill amending the constitution of the Appeal Court of the Colony. Many of the arguments marshalled by the Hon. Mr. Osborne against the leading provision of the Bill are certainly formidable. They show, in short, that to bring the Judge of H.B.M.'s Supreme Court for China to Hongkong for fifteen days twice a year, to sit with the two local Judges in Appellate Jurisdiction, would be certain to prove not only a most unsatisfactory but, in all probability, an absolutely unworkable arrangement. The alternative suggested is the appointment of a third Judge. Statistics were quoted by the Hon. Mr. Osborne which showed that since the existing constitution of the Appeal Court was formed, nearly 40 years ago, summary cases in the Courts have nearly doubled, whilst important cases heard by the Chief Justice have quadrupled in the time. Yet no increase has been made in the number of Judges. Prima facie a good case is made out for the appointment of a third Judge, not only for the purpose of providing a more satisfactory Court of Appeal, but in order to cope with the greatly increased work of the Courts. But in view of comparatively recent pronouncements on this question, we do not consider it has been made sufficiently clear in the discussion that the increase in the ordinary work of the Courts, in itself, justifies the appointment of a third Judge. The Hon. Mr. MURRAY STEWART quoted from a letter written by Sir FREDERICK LUGARD to the Chief Justice in October, 1908, in which he said:—"We are all agreed that the appointment of a third Judge would be most desirable, but it is my duty to examine the comparative urgency of a number of extremely desirable requirements in relation to the finances of the Colony, and I have come to the conclusion, so far as my personal view is concerned, that in the coming year the Colony cannot afford a third Judge. This extract, taken alone, is in conflict with a declaration on the subject made by His Excellency in the Legislative Council in September, 1908, when Sir FREDERICK LUGARD said that, like his predecessor, he had found the general opinion to be that, except for the purposes of an Appeal Court, a third Judge was not immediately required. That was less than four years ago, and we are not aware that it can be said that the work of the Courts has materially increased since. It would perhaps be useful to the discussion of the question if we reproduce in its entirety Sir FREDERICK LUGARD's reference to the subject in the Legislative Council on 24th September, 1908. We quote from Hanard, page 126:—

I have a few words to say regarding the judicial vote. Shortly after my arrival in the Colony the Chief Justice represented to me the urgent necessity of a third Judge, both in order to lighten the work of the Judges of the Supreme Court and in order to form a more effective Court of Appeal. I found that my predecessor had not considered that the necessity had been demonstrated and that the Secretary of State, after a full review of the arguments put forward by the Chief Justice, had finally negatived the proposal. I felt myself, however, that the existing Appeal Court, consisting of two judges only, of whom the Chief Justice had a casting vote, must necessarily be very unsatisfactory, since it practically prohibited an appeal from a decision of the Chief Justice unless it was intended to take the case to the Privy Council, a course prohibitive to any but very wealthy litigants. It was equally unsatisfactory to the Chief Justice, as to litigants, for if at the new hearing by the Full Court he saw cause to review his former decision—more especially if this occurred more than once, he was open to the imputation that he did not know his own mind or that he was influenced by his junior; while if he adhered to his former decision, it was alleged that the appeal was a farce. In this view I was supported by the Chief Justice and the Puisne Judges, the Attorney-General and the members of the Bar, but, like my predecessor, I have found the general opinion to be that, except for the purposes of an Appeal Court, a third Judge was not immediately required. The cost involved, estimated at $25,000, and the difficulty of finding accommodation pending the completion of the new Law Courts were additional reasons for deferring such an appointment. I suggested therefore to the Secretary of State that the Judge of the Shanghai Court should visit Hongkong twice in a year and sit as an Appeal Judge here. In this proposal the Secretary of State and the Foreign Office have agreed, but, as I have only recently received the telegram, no provision appears in the Estimates. The cost is small and is estimated at £275. We must, I think, regard this as only a temporary measure, for appeal work is sure to increase and will take up more time than the Shanghai Judge can spare. It will, however, I hope, form a useful and practicable expedient to bridge over the time which must elapse before the new Law Courts are open, when, I hope, our finances may be in a better position to afford a third Judge.

It will be seen from this extract that Sir FREDERICK LUGARD, like his predecessor, Sir MATTHEW NATHAN, was not satisfied that a third Judge was necessary, except for the purposes of the Court of Appeal, and we have no doubt the Colonial Office will want to know what has occurred in the last four years to alter "the general opinion" on the question. As to the question of cost, it will be noticed that the estimate by Sir FREDERICK LUGARD is double the sum suggested by the Hon. Mr. MURRAY STEWART. But, whatever the cost, the Colony would, no doubt, give a ready assent to the expenditure if it is shown to be necessary in order to prevent the ordinary work of the Courts getting badly in arrears. So far as concerns the constitution of the Appeal Court, we are disposed to regard the alternative suggested as no great improvement on the arrangement proposed by the Bill, unless it is intended that the third Judge shall be a man of equal standing to the Chief Justice. It may be that Sir FREDERICK LUGARD, when he gave an estimate of $25,000 as the cost, contemplated the appointment of an experienced Judge. It would obviously not enhance the prestige of the Appeal Court of the Colony if, say, two Passed Cadets, promoted to the Bench, were invested with the power to reverse a judgment given by the Chief Justice, who is necessarily a man of considerable legal attainments and experience. Unless at least one of the Judges of the Appeal Court is regarded as of equal standing as a lawyer to the Chief Justice of the Colony we do not see how the proceedings of the Appeal Court are to escape being looked upon as "somewhat farcical." There is yet another alternative, we think, and that is for the Colonial Office and the Foreign Office to come to some arrangement for the appointment of a Judge of good standing, as an Appeal Judge for both Hongkong and Shanghai. H.B.M.'s Court for China, like the Supreme Court of Hongkong, has but two Judges, and we should think that Court could very ill afford to spare the Chief Judge for two months a year to come to Hongkong. The same objections which apply to the constitution of the Appeal Court in Hongkong, apply with equal force to the Shanghai Court, and we offer the suggestion of a Judge with a roving commission, as it were, as a possible solution of the problem. When there is no work in the Appeal Courts the Judge could assist in the ordinary work of either Court if pressure of work renders additional help necessary.

A dividend at the rate of 30 per cent. is being paid by the Senawang Rubber Co., Ltd., a Shanghai company.

To-night M. Eugene Ossipoff gives his concert in the City Hall, and Mr. R. G. Knowles occupies the stage at the Theatre.

For selling lottery tickets in the Colony a Chinese was yesterday ordered by Mr. Melbourne at the Magistracy to pay a fine of $50.

Sir Charles Eliot, the Principal of the Hongkong University, is coming out by the Kanun-Maru, which left London on May 11th.

Sir John N. Jordan, British Minister to China, has been elected a member of the Senate of Belfast University in place of the late Sir Robert Hart.

A Chinaman with a queue, who had been seen landing from a junk with a quantity of opium in his possession, was at the Magistracy yesterday fined $1.70.

Eight men and a woman, charged with the theft of silk from the Sosaku Maru in the harbour, appeared before the Magistracy yesterday and were remanded.

We understand that likin is still being imposed on goods entering the interior by rail from Hongkong, and that the protests made against the illegal exaction have so far been without result.

The many friends of Sir Patrick Manson in Hongkong and the Far East will be pleased to learn that he is contemplating a visit to Hongkong during the winter. Sir Patrick is spending the summer months in Ceylon.

At the Magistracy yesterday the house-boy who was charged by a European lady at Kowloon was convicted and fined $10 or 14 days and was bound over in a personal bond of $100 to keep the peace for six months. Defendant was very insolent in the dock and said the police were afraid to go into the house, because, she was a "bad-tempered foreign devil."

DEATH OF DR. R. H. GRAVES OF CANTON.

We deeply regret to announce that the Rev. R. H. Graves, M.D., D.D., Senior Missionary of the American Southern Baptist Convention Mission, after an unparallelled service of fifty-six years in the tropics, died at his home in Canton on Monday last. Dr. Graves bore the distinction of being the oldest active missionary and of having the longest term of service of any missionary in South China. Though in his eightieth year, he had kept his mental and physical powers in a most remarkable way up to the time of his death.

LOSS OF A STEAMER OFF MINDANAO.

The Philippine inter-island steamer Brutus was lost off Mindanao last week, but all on board were saved except the chief officer, Manuel Ayala. The steamer appears to have struck San Ramon point. The Brutus was valued at 100,000 pesos and was not insured, so the loss on the vessel will amount to that sum. She was built at Dumbarton in 1890, her constructors being Messrs. A. McMillan & Son. Her gross tonnage was 1,277. Being one of the pioneer steamers of the inter-island trade, she was well-known at the principal ports of the Philippines.

A TRADE MARKS CASE.

At the Magistracy yesterday the case of the Wo Lee firm, of 33, Yee Woo Street, who prosecuted the Lam Fat Sing firm, of Shanghai Street, Yumati, for infringement of trade marks in respect of grass cloth, was mentioned. Mr. Otto Kong Sing appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. G. K. H. Bruton appeared for the defence.

The case was set down for yesterday, but his Worship said he could not take it, and he had not an open date until next Friday.

Mr. Bruton asked that the case be heard earlier than that. It was very important to his clients, who had goods to the value of $10,000 seized. If the goods were released, it would not matter what date was fixed for the hearing.

His Worship thought that was a matter for arrangement between the parties. Mr. Otto Kong Sing said that the goods had been seized on a sworn affidavit that they were infringing his clients' trade mark.

Mr. Bruton—And that we deny. His Worship said he was helpless in the matter. Every date next week was taken up to Friday.

Mr. Bruton said that as the hearing had been fixed for yesterday, it ought to be proceeded with.

His Worship—Very well, I am quite prepared to do that.

Mr. Otto Kong Sing said that it was understood when the case was put down for yesterday that it would not be proceeded with, and he had not his witnesses there.

Mr. Bruton urged that the case should be proceeded with and sufficient evidence heard which would allow his Worship to order the release of the goods.

Eventually it was decided to take the case to-day.

THE CHINESE LOAN.

LONDON, June 7th.

Sir Edward Grey, in reply to a question addressed by Mr. Ginnell, M.P., in the House of Commons, said: Pending the final issue of the Chinese Loan now being negotiated, His Majesty's Government had assured the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the British representative in the International combination, of their exclusive support, which, it is hoped, will render effective the aim of His Majesty's Government and prevent a return to the former unprofitable policy of international competition in Chinese loans. The support now given to this Bank in no wise confers a monopoly on the Bank for the issue of future loans, and it is understood that the Bank will admit to full participation British houses of established reputation. We have no desire to take advantage of China's difficulties. It is China who wants to borrow; not others who wish to press loans upon her. If China can dispense with foreign loans it would be a very great relief and would put an end to many troublesome questions. It is clear that in the present state of affairs in China, if money is to be lent, it must be upon proper conditions. Otherwise Chinese credit will disappear, and confusion and chaos will result, and I cannot support anything likely to produce these circumstances.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

BALL AT THE ALBERT HALL.

LONDON, June 7th.

All London society, including several members of the Royal Family, were present at the "Hundred Years Ago" Ball at the Albert Hall last night. The ball, which was held on behalf of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society, was the most brilliant function of the season. There were four thousand dancers, and many historic quadrilles were danced, the descendants of Lord Nelson and other famous men appearing in the guise of their ancestors.

THE AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

LONDON, June 7th.

In the semi-final for the amateur golf championship Mr. Mitchell, the well-known Cantelupe artisan golfer, beat Mr. Macfarlane, of Bushey, by five up and three to play, while the veteran Mr. John Ball beat Mr. Hambro by three up and two to play.

THE LONDON STRIKE.

LONDON, June 7th.

Ninety ships were being unloaded on Thursday afternoon, and the prospect of an early settlement of the strike has been advanced considerably by the renewed conferences between the Government and the masters and the men.

There has been some trouble at Tilbury, where the police were compelled to make a truncheon charge.

NATIONAL STRIKE IN PROSPECT.

A gloomier view of the strike was taken last night, and there were indications that the answer of the employers to the proposals of the Government would be unfavourable.

Mr. Gosling, in a message to the Lightermen's Union, said that if the masters did not reply to-day, or if the reply was unfavourable, a national strike would be declared immediately.

The success of such a movement, however, is considered doubtful in view of the attitude of the seamen.

It appears that the employers maintain that a federation in their interest would be impracticable.

THE GOVERNMENT AND "STRIKE-BREAKERS."

Mr. McKenna, in the House of Commons last night, replying to questions as to why the Government did not afford protection to the workers at Purfleet, said it was not the Government's duty to assist the employers in acts like the importation of strike breakers, calculated to provoke disorder.

THE LATE SIR JULIUS WERNHER'S ESTATE.

LONDON, June 7th.

The estate of the late Sir Julius Wernher amounts to five millions sterling. Of that amount, a quarter of a million has been bequeathed to the South African Union to build a University at Grootenhuur.

THE MOROCCO TROUBLE.

LONDON, June 7th.

A Paris wire states that the Franco-Spanish agreement in connection with Morocco is on the point of settlement. The news has been greeted with much satisfaction.

The league matches set down for to-day—Police v. Tailors and Civil Service v. Kowloon—both to be played on the Happy Valley, have been postponed.

The results in the first round of the open championship of the Colony to date are:—

W. Gerrard (P) beat K. McLennan (P).
J. Scott (T) beat J. Weir (T).
J. Scott (T) beat J. Webb (T).
H. Dinnen (T) beat J. Irving (C).
W. Wotherspoon (T) beat J. Baker (P).
W. Cameron (P) beat J. Ferguson (T).
G. Anderson (T) beat A. Ramsay (K).
G. Haxton (K) walk-over from T.

SUPREME COURT.

Friday, June 8th.

IN ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE (HON. MR. REES DAVIES).

THE INSURANCE CLAIM.

The case was resumed in which the Wa Leong Cheung Kee firm claimed from the Prussian National Insurance Co. of Stettin, the sum of $22,500 alleged to be due on three policies of insurance. Mr. Eldon Potter (instructed by Mr. Davidson, of Hastings & Hastings) appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C., with him Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster (instructed by Mr. Shenton, of Deacon, Looker & Deacon), appeared for the defendants.

The managing partner of the Wa Leong firm, further cross-examined, said that when he visited the place after the fire, he was so disgusted and disheartened that he did not take much notice of what was in the shop.

Mr. Pollock—Did you see a quilt stand searched?—Yes.

Did you see a stock book found?—I do not know what sort of stock book you mean; there were some bills found there. There was a memorandum book in which I kept a record of money I had spent for food, etc.

Witness further stated that there was no stock book found in a drawer of the quilt stand. A stock book was not found on the premises at all.

The case was adjourned until Monday.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE MR. H. H. J. GOMPERTZ. (PUISNE JUDGE).

A SHIPPING CASE.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Co. sued A. R. Marty for $254.71. The statement of claim was to the effect that on or about August 2nd, 1910, defendant, for a valuable consideration, contracted to take from the plaintiffs a certain parcel of dental goods and convey the same by the s.s. Hanoi to the port of Hanoi, and there deliver the same to J. W. Edwards. Defendant duly received the parcel of goods from the plaintiffs on or about August 2nd, 1910, but through the neglect of defendant, his servants or agents, he failed to deliver the goods, whereby the plaintiffs had suffered a loss in the sum of $254.71. Mr. Lewis (Johnson, Stokes & Master) appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Shenton (Deacon, Looker & Deacon) for the defendant.

Mr. Shenton—I would ask for pleadings in this case. Negligence is alleged, and I think the plea should be justified.

Mr. Lewis—If your Lordship would see the writ of summons, you would see that negligence is set out very fully.

Mr. Shenton—Particulars of negligence will be sufficient for me.

Mr. Lewis—If my friend wants particulars, I am willing. He must either give me particulars of his defence, or I must give notice for him to admit facts. Will your Lordship order particulars of alleged negligence and mutual discovery?

His Lordship—Yes, 14 days for particulars.

MESSAGERIES MARITIMES.

The annual general meeting of the Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes has been held in Paris, M. André Lebon presiding. The balance of receipts over expenses in 1911 amounts to 110,085,532. After deducting obligatory charges the net profit is 17,805,502. The meeting agreed to put 17,000,000 to the renewal of the loan of 1,154,883 being carried forward. The shareholders further authorised the Board to contract a competitive loan of a nominal amount of 1,550,000 by issuing bonds redeemable at latest by November 30th, 1937, the date of the expiration of the new convention. The Chairman's speech was very encouraging in regard to the future of the company.

CHINESE FINANCE.

THE LOAN NEGOTIATIONS.

The following delegates were present at the conference of the bankers interested in Chinese finance in London on May 14th, 15th, and 16th:—

British delegate, Mr. C. S. Addis.
German delegates, Herren Franz Ullrich and E. Reiders.
French delegates, M. N. S. Simon and E. Ullman.
American delegates, Messrs. H. P. Davidson, Mortimer Schiff, and C. F. Whigham; Dr. Melchior and Mr. W. D. Straight.
Russian delegate, M. M. Verstraete.
Japanese delegate, Mr. K. Takeuchi.

CANTON.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

June 6th.

WU HON MAN.

The Provincial Assembly in Canton does not seem to get on too well with its head. It is not so long since they were protesting against the late Governor, Chan Kwing Ming, on account of his high-handed manner of dealing, while now they are objecting to Mr. Wu's partiality, as they call it, meaning his disregard of their wishes. It has been decided to send a deputation to Peking to protest and to find out the powers and jurisdiction of the Provincial Assembly.

PURIFYING THE RIVER.

A great amount of refuse of all sorts finds its way into the river, and especially into the different creeks, causing nauseous smells and helping to breed vermin and spread disease. Not only this, but this water is used by a large percentage of the people for washing purposes, and by the poorer people even for cooking. The attention of the sanitary department has been drawn to this matter, and in the interests of the health of the community they have decreed that no refuse is to be thrown into the river under penalty of imprisonment, and that all lavatories, etc., in the near vicinity of the river or creeks are to be removed within a week. There are plenty of facilities for the removal of refuse, and it is proposed even to augment those. If this matter receives the serious consideration which these preliminaries seem to imply, it ought to have a good effect upon the health of the community.

A NEW RIDING CLUB.

It has been proposed to form a large Riding and Shooting Club near the East Gate, and the matter has received great attention from the rich and influential people. A large sum of money has been put forward and the matter is in the hands of Li Chi Chung and others, who have approached the Government for recognition and protection, bringing forward the argument that it will be greatly to the benefit of the Army in providing them with officers and strong healthy soldiers. It has received the sanction of the Governor.

LOCAL BANK NOTES.

There is still trouble in connection with the local bank notes. Some shopkeepers, despite Government notices and warnings, refuse to accept them at all, while others continue to demand a discount, so that every day sees some row caused by this. Yesterday, a soldier fell foul of a money-changer who demanded about 10 per cent. discount, and they came to blows, with the result that the money-changer was locked up and later on sentenced to imprisonment for lowering the value of the legal currency. Something will have to be done soon in this matter, for one sees in large stores this notice every day, "Chinese bank-notes not accepted in payment," and there are a tremendous amount of these at present in circulation.

THE WEATHER.

The weather over the whole delta has for the past week been very unsettled. Much more rain has fallen than usual, and thunderstorms have been frequent. On Wednesday it rained heavily, continuously all day, and the river has risen considerably, so that flooding in the streets in the lower parts of the city is worse than ever. The West River rising and rushing down past Samshui is causing very strong tides, and to cross the river at present is a matter of some difficulty.

SHAMKUN.

There are in the river at present:—H.M.S. Cho and Robin, the French gunboat Vigilante, the U.S.S. Piscataqua and the Japanese Uji.

The result of the recent searches for arms is shown in one direction by a rather long proclamation which has been issued regarding licences. All persons who possess a rifle, pistol, revolver or other firearm must apply for a licence, which will cost $3. These licences are to be issued from June 1st and will be valid for one year from that date. The owners are requested to bring their arms for inspection in order that a list may be made up. The Government reserves the right to retain any they think fit, but in all cases compensation will be made. All holders of previously issued permits will receive this licence on presentation of the old one and their rifle for examination. This matter is being taken up thoroughly and it will certainly do a great deal for the peace of the province. In the city and suburbs and the near districts the arrangements are almost sure to work successfully, but it remains to be seen how far success will attend these efforts in the Delta.

HONGKONG SHARE MARKET.

Messrs. Vernon and Smyth in their weekly share report dated June 7th state:—

The market generally has ruled quieter during the past week, but rates on the whole have ruled firm. Sterling Rubbers are not materially changed during the interval. Fine Hard Para Rubber is quoted to-day from London at 4/7½ per lb. quiet. Discount rates are quoted at 3 per cent. (Bank of England) 2½ per cent. (open market rate), and Bar Silver at 28d. per oz. quiet. Sterling T.T. closes at 1/11½-15, and T.T. on Shanghai at 72½.

BANKS.—Hongkong and Shanghai are quoted for at $935, with local sellers holding for $940. London is unchanged at $24 10/16.

MARINE INSURANCES.—Unions have again been done at $908, at which rate the market closes firm. Cantons, after sales at $223, have been done at $225, and more shares are wanted.

FIRE INSURANCES.—Chinas have sold at $132, and Hongkongs at $350, both closing firm.

SHIPPING.—Hongkong, Canton and Macao are firmer with sales at $27½ and probable buyers. Indo-Chinas are unchanged at $65 buyers, the London rate remaining at 140/- (middle price). China and Manila are procurable at $103, and Douglas at $27. Star Ferrys continue in request at $33 (old) and $34 (new), but no business is reported. Shell Transports have further declined under "bear" influences in London, the closing quotations being 101/6 sellers.

REFINERIES.—China Sugars have been booked at $105 and more shares are procurable. Luzons have further declined to $31 sellers, but at $30 a fair number of shares can be placed.

MINING.—Tronchs, after declining to 74/6, sellers, are firmer in London with no seller under 76/-. Raubs are wanted at $93, and Chinese Engineerings at 33/½, after sales.

DOCKS, WHARVES AND GODOWNS.—Hongkong and Whampoa Docks are procurable at $48, and Kowloon Wharves at $61. New Amoy Docks can be placed at $61 after sales at $61. Shanghai Docks are quoted at Tls. 50 and Shung-hai and Hongkew Wharves at Tls. 61.

LANDS, HOTELS AND BUILDINGS.—Hongkong Lands have ruled quiet with buyers at $105 after small sales at $106½, closing with sellers at $106. Kowloon Lands can be placed at $34 and West Points at $53½. Hongkong Hotels are firm with probable buyers at $110 (old) and $72 (new). Humphreys, Bates have again been done at $73, at which there are buyers, with sellers at $8.

COTTON MILLS.—Hongkongs are unchanged at $5 with probable sellers. Ews have declined in the North to Tls. 87 sellers.

MISCELLANEOUS.—China Borneos are procurable at $9½ and China Providents at $8½. Cements are quiet at $4, Electric at $23, Dairy Farms at $22, and Ropes at $19½. There are buyers of Steam Laundries at $54, Watsons at $4½, Powells at $6½, and Fisheries at $4.

QUOTATIONS.—The following quotations (middle price) were received from London by wire to-day:—
Ledsbys 52/6
Linggis 31/6
United Serdangs 102/6
Sapongs 25/6
London Asiatics 10/6
E. & I. Trusts 17/6

Hongkong Electric Trams 4/6
Shell Transports 101/3
Chinese Engineering 35/6
Indo-Chinas 140/-

THREE-CORNERED SHIP.

Professor Otto Kretschmer, dean of the marine engineering department of the Charlottenburg Technical School and late Chief Constructor of the German Navy, has published plans for an "unsinkable" vessel of novel design.

It is to be a three-cornered, or "tetrahedral," ship, and its other unique feature is that it will be a ship within a ship. In other words, Professor Kretschmer proposes to make it unsinkable by constructing two absolutely separate and distinct hulls, one within the other.

The inner ship is to contain the vessel proper, especially all the engines, boilers, and coal-bunkers, so that in case of such a collision as that which sent the Titanic to the bottom, only the outer keel or walls of the vessel can be damaged or caved in. There are no communicating doors leading into the "inner ship," which the designer declares would remain afloat and unsinkable in all imaginable contingencies.

In the "Journal for Practical Machine-Building," in the current number of which Professor Kretschmer outlines his scheme, he states that there is grave danger that the world will be lulled back into its old belief in the infallibility of the traditional form of ship. He asserts there will be no positive safety of life at sea till shipowners and shipbuilders can be compelled to abandon the present type of construction.

"No increase of lifeboats and lifebelts," he says, "will solve the problem. We must break, and break radically, with old construction ideas, and look for real safety in the only place where it is to be found—viz., in taking advantage of the opportunities which technical science holds out to us."

A BRIDGE ACCIDENT IN THE PHILIPPINES.

TEN MEN KILLED.

According to information received by the Bureau of Public Works in Manila the large steel bridge that was being erected at kilometer 13.1 between Camps three and four on the Benguet road, fell on Friday afternoon May 31st, while the workmen were putting it into position, precipitating a number of the workmen into the river over 100 feet below and killing ten of them, four Filipinos and six Japanese carpenters. Eleven others were severely injured. The accident is reported to have been caused by the slipping of one of the cables.

HONGKONG REGISTRATION OF COMPANIES.

The following letter appears in the Shanghai Mercury of the 1st inst.:—
Sir,—In last night's Mercury you reproduced from the Hongkong Government Gazette a list of companies which it is intended shall be struck off the register and dissolved. I should like to know if the Registrar has made any inquiry into the reasons for the collapse of any of these companies? I happen to have shares in one of the companies mentioned, but this is the first information I have had that the company is to be dissolved. The Hongkong Government, I believe, receives a considerable revenue from Shanghai companies for the privilege they have of being registered in the Colony, and shareholders are happy in the thought that this registration is a British Colony affords them some sort of protection, but as far as I can see this is a complete delusion. It appears to me that the Registrar, before he strikes a company off the register, should, in the interests of the creditors and shareholders, inquire into the reasons why the company has ceased to exist. If it is impossible to do this in Shanghai, it appears to me Hongkong should not register companies in Shanghai.—I am, etc.,

THE OPIUM TRAFFIC.

MR. THWING'S RETRACTION.

The following letter appeared in the Peking Daily News of May 25th:—

Sir,—If you will permit me to use the columns of your paper, I wish to make a public apology to my British friends for using the name of their King in a way that was very unpleasant to them. I will be more careful in the future. I have learned how sacred they hold the name of their King and Queen. Many of the Americans do not realize that fact. We think often of the President as just the head of the Government. I have been misunderstood in my intentions, which were not to insult the British, but just to try and make them think on this great question, but I made a mistake in the way of going at it in this case, and some have said that it has hurt the anti-opium cause. I am very sorry, but I have learned something. I have lost good friends, and have been called rather bad names, both in public and in private. No doubt I deserve all that; but I understand the British view-point better. As one British lady said to me: "You can say what you want against the Government, but don't you say anything against our King; he cannot decide anything or do anything himself, and he cannot help the opium trade." I will not do so again, and I did not intend to offend the British people so much, as it seems I have done. I realize their real sympathy in China's fight against opium. And the fight will continue, as hard as ever, and sometimes we will have to be "agitated" by the Government. I fear, but we will leave the King out of the question. The campaign is not anti-foreign, or anti-British in spirit, but anti-opium. It is against the cultivation of opium, the trade in opium, and the desire of all is to free China from this degrading vice, which makes her weak at the earliest possible date.

We want to carry on the warfare, against the great difficulties and forces that oppose us, in a fair manner, and in as friendly a spirit as possible. Thanking you for the opportunity to publish this letter.—Yours, etc.,
E. W. THWING.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION.

The San Francisco Chronicle has stated the case for California against Mr. Roosevelt in these terms:—

"There is one thing upon which Californians are pretty well united, and that is on the question of Oriental immigration. On repeated occasions the voters of the State have shown that they are nearly a unit on this subject, and that they would present a solid front against any candidate who had declared himself in favour of throwing wide open the doors to this undesirable class of immigrants."

"That is the position taken by Roosevelt. He has declared himself unequivocally in favour of Japanese immigration, and gave effect to his declaration when he occupied the Presidential chair by menacing the people of this State with an armed invasion if they persisted in their stand that they had a right to regulate their own schools without interference from the authorities in Washington."

"Not only did Roosevelt take this stand when he was President, but he added to the indignity by asserting, in the heat of anger, that the Japanese were on the whole better fitted for citizenship than most San Franciscans, and if his imperious will, and a bargain with the unsavoury Schmitz, had not prevailed he would probably have made good his threats to teach us a lesson."

"The progressives of California may forget the debt of gratitude they owe to Taft, but the people of the State will not overlook the fact that the Colonel bulldozed us when the matter of Japanese in the schools was a burning question. There are many who are yearning to get even with him because of his attitude on that occasion."

A native quack was being tried in one of the Java courts recently for having caused death by a rash act. "What are your general methods of cure?" asked the judge of the accused during the hearing. The latter replied that he invariably prescribed two methods: the one was vitriol, white sugar, and black pepper; and the other was vitriol, black sugar and white pepper. "Have you ever cured any persons by these means?" was the next question. "Sometimes it comes off and sometimes it doesn't," said the physician. Homer said in his Iliad that a doctor is a man that stands out above many others.

CHINA'S NATIONAL COUNCIL.

INTRODUCTION OF AN ANTI-OPIMUM BILL.

An Anti-Opium Bill is before the National Council at Peking. The Peking Daily News (a Chinese paper printed in English) says:—

The members of the Council who introduced the Bill into the Assembly state that there are three reasons for its introduction. After denouncing the use of the drug as a social evil the necessity of its immediate eradication is given as the first reason. The second reason for the Bill is to discharge our international obligation placed upon the country by the conclusion of the Opium Convention with Great Britain. Article 2 of the Convention provides that if China can effect total suppression of the plantation of the poppy before the year 1917, (the 9th year of Hsuanlung) the importation of opium from India will correspondingly be stopped. It is to be observed that the Convention not only does not prevent China from effecting a total suppression of opium cultivation at an earlier date than 1917, but seems to encourage China to suppress opium effectively.

The third reason is that uniformity should be maintained in all government measures. It is absolutely necessary that there should be uniformity throughout the country in the matter of the suppression of opium. The Convention provides, in Article 3, that Indian opium will not be transported into the country where the cultivation of opium has been totally suppressed. Opium is strictly prohibited in Hunan and Chekiang, but there are other provinces wherein the drug should also be suppressed. It is therefore considered indispensable that laws for the suppression of opium should be passed by the National Council and strictly enforced in the different provinces.

The Bill aims at the suppression of cultivation, sale and consumption of opium and is divided into five chapters, consisting in all of 16 articles. Chapter 1 deals with General Provisions wherein it is provided that the opium evil is to be totally suppressed by the end of December of the first year of the Republic and that the present law is only applicable to those provinces where total suppression of the drug has not yet been effected. Chapter 2 deals with the suppression of plantation, and it is provided (Article 3) that within one month after the promulgation of the present law all the anti-opium bureaux and their branches in the different provinces shall dispatch deputies to different places to investigate without delay, and to report any clandestine cultivation to the Magistrate of the district, who is required to uproot the poppy and to punish the offenders according to Article 1 of the Anti-Opium laws.

For the suppression of sale of opium, it is provided (Art. 4) that by July, this year, the provincial anti-opium bureaux and their branches shall dispatch deputies to inspect the books of all the opium dealers to find out how much has been sold during June and how much is left over and to make an inventory showing the amount of opium required by each dealer up to the end of December, the amount to be computed by making a monthly reduction of 20 per cent. of their respective monthly sales, minus the amount in stock. The inventory is to be put on file in the bureaux and branch bureaux for reference. After July 20th of this year, the anti-opium bureaux and their branches will issue to each opium dealer a certificate for the purchase of raw opium, of which the amount shall not exceed the amount computed according to the preceding article (Article 5). All opium dealers shall close their shops by the end of December of this year, and the opium unsold shall be surrendered to the anti-opium bureaux or their branches to be destroyed. Any violation of this article shall subject the shop to be sealed and the owner to imprisonment of from the third to the fifth grade (Art. 6).

For the regulation of opium-smoking, it is provided that every opium-smoker shall be required by July of this year to renew his licence to smoke opium in the provincial anti-opium bureaux and their branches, once every month. The bureau in renewing the licence shall state therein the amount consumed by the licensee, which is to be divided into ten parts of which two parts are henceforth to be reduced every month. Ten days previous to the limit set for the total suppression of opium every opium-smoker shall surrender to the anti-opium bureau the apparatus for opium smoking and the opium unconsumed, irrespective of whether he has been cured of the habit or not. After the expiration of the above stated period, anybody found to possess opium apparatus for opium-smoking in secret shall be subject to imprisonment of from the third to the fifth grade, and anybody found in possession of apparatus for opium-smoking shall be subject to a fine of not more than 100 dollars.—At the expiration of the time limit, any male opium-smoker who shall not have cured himself of the opium evil shall enter anti-opium bureaux to be cured thereof, and every opium-smoker who is a female or is old, weak or sick, shall report at the anti-opium bureau the amount of opium consumed by her or him every day so that a certificate (to be renewed daily) may be issued thereby for the purchase of a stated amount of anti-opium medicine. Anybody found to prepare opium for clandestine consumption in violation of the present article shall be subject to imprisonment of the fifth grade or to a fine of not more than 1,000 dollars (Article 7-11).

All the provinces which have not yet established anti-opium bureaux are enjoined by the present law to do so without delay, and the Ministry of Interior is empowered to draw up regulations for its enforcement.

This story is from the Edinburgh Review.—A wealthy man on his deathbed, and conscious of a not altogether well-spent life, anxiously inquired of his Scotch minister whether he thought that a gift of a large sum of money to his church would make matters easier for him. "Ah, well," replied the cautious minister, "I'll not be giving any guarantee, but" (anxious not to lose the chance for his church) "it's an experiment that's well worth trying."

THE NIPPON YUSEN KAISHA.

HALF-YEARLY REPORT.

The half-yearly meeting of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha was held in the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce building on the 28th ult. to receive the report and accounts for the six months ending March 31st. The following is a summary of the accounts:—

Net profit	2,100,321 Yen.
Brought forward from last term	759,844
Total	2,910,965

To reserve	108,016
Reserve for supplementing the deficiency in the Subsidies	258,579
Funds for the expansion of services and improvements on steamers	500,000
Bonuses to officials	70,420
Dividend (ten per cent. per annum)	1,100,000
Carried to next term	882,944

The following is the report for the term:—

During the first half of the business year ending March 31st, the Company and its 70 steamers of its own, aggregating 237,000 tons, in addition to seven other specially commissioned vessels, representing 20,000 tons, as well as several chartered steamers. The passengers carried during the period numbered 78,000; goods transported amounted to 1,640,000 tons; while the distance travelled was 1,600,000 nautical miles.

Domestic Service.—During the period under review the shipping business was very brisk in all directions, and the Company had to hire several steamers to cope with the trade. The number of passengers increased, especially in the direction of Formosa.

Far Eastern Service.—Generally speaking, the shipping business on this service was dull. In the direction of Shanghai there was a considerable diminution in the shipments, due to the revolution in China since October last. To Tientsin, however, shipping traffic was very active, but to Newchwang and Dairen the contrary was the case. In Vladivostok and Chosen there was some increase in the business done, as compared with the preceding term. In passenger traffic there was a remarkable increase in the direction of Shanghai.

European Service.—In addition to eleven regular liners, the Company hired two steamers. On the outgoing voyages the goods carried were nearly equal to those of the corresponding period of the preceding year. The exports to Shanghai diminished greatly on account of the revolution, but business in the direction of Hongkong, the Straits Settlements and Colombo was nearly equal to that of the preceding year. On the return voyages, too, the business was almost the same as in the preceding period, with the exception of machinery and articles for industrial purposes, which showed some increase. Owing to the strike of miners in England in March last, the shipping business of the Company suffered considerably, but there was a great increase in passenger traffic, the Japanese steamer passengers to Singapore showing a great increase.

American Service.—In addition to three vessels running between Hongkong and Seattle, the Company placed another steamer on the Kobe-Seattle Line, which had been served by two steamers since 1910. In fact, the Company has now opened a fortnightly service between Hongkong and Seattle. On the outgoing voyage the shipments of cereals and foodstuffs generally to the Pacific Coast increased considerably, while the shipments of flour to Japan and other Asiatic ports also increased. The number of passengers increased both on the outward and return voyages.

Australian Service.—On the outgoing voyages the shipments from Japan and Hongkong were favourable, and the same may be said of shipments from Australia to Hongkong and Japan ports. The number of Russian emigrants to Australia and of Japanese emigrants to Manila was unexpectedly large. Bombay Service.—On the outgoing voyages there was a decline in the shipments from Japan, Hongkong and Singapore, but on the return voyages the shipments of cotton to Japan were unusually large, the Company being obliged to charter foreign steamers at exorbitant rates to cope with the business.

Calcutta Service.—This service, which was opened in the preceding half-year, is now being carried on by five vessels. On the outgoing voyages there were large shipments. Keen competition now prevails with various foreign shipping concerns on this line, and the Company is determined to continue the contest to the bitter end.

DEATH OF MR. CHESTER HOLCOMB.

American newspapers announce the death, on April 25th, at Lyons, New York, of Mr. Chester Holcomb, who was for some years an official of the American Legation at Peking. Mr. Holcomb was born in 1844 and graduated at Union College in 1861. Later he became interpreter and Secretary of the American Legation here, and at several periods between 1876 and 1883 was Acting Minister. In 1889 he was a member of the Commission that negotiated the treaties with China. Mr. Holcomb was an accomplished Chinese scholar, and wrote a number of valuable books. He was the author of a Neutral Arithmetic, a Life of Christ, and a Translation of the American Declaration of Independence—in Chinese; and a number of works in English dealing with China and Chinese questions, among them: The Practical Effect of Confucianism upon the Chinese Nation; Travels in Western China; Catalogue and Hand Book of Antique Chinese Porcelains; The Real Chinaman; The Real Chinese Question, and others of less importance. Mr. Holcomb was a Lowell Institute lecturer, and very well known to Americans through his many contributions to magazines and newspapers upon subjects appertaining to China and the Far East.

FASHION'S PUBLIC VIEW.

The evening dress of the moment is very lovely, and there are one or two places in London where the initiated know that they can on any occasion have a full view of the loveliest frocks of the moment. Naturally these are not the places where Mayfair goes. Those who are interested in the denizens of Mayfair know where to find them in the evenings at dinner and supper, but those who are interested in dress itself are aware that the famous gathering-place of stage stars and "smart" women is, without doubt, the place in which to study the last word in frocks. The difference is simply that about real society there still lingers the influence of the old saying that a lady should always be sufficiently well-dressed to be inconspicuous, and, consequently, their clothes are already modified. But popular footlight favourites, unrestrained by any such tradition, and on the other hand fully aware that supper parties are among the most valuable forms of advertisement, can be trusted to wear the most advanced fashions of the moment.

A tall and slender woman the other night was wearing a very lovely gown of thick and rich black satin. The top of the bodice was softened with a scarf of very beautiful creamy lace, fine and weblike. This was carried over the shoulders, was crossed on the slender and upright back, carried down to the hips, and then in a long curve brought round to the front, where, at the level of the knees, it met beneath a large butterfly-shaped ornament of diamonds. The front of the skirt showed us the revival of an old fashion—the full petticoat of lace forming a panel. The lace in this instance was white, and of a different kind from that of the scarf, less fine and holder in design. The diamond butterfly and the scarf ends thus kept in place the folds of the petticoat. There was a long, narrow skirt, ending in one of those pointed-trails which form an infallible method of tripping up even the most experienced dancer accustomed to every other variety of that frivolity described by a distinguished American as “a passion for trailing yards of dry goods behind you.”

A band of black velvet, worn high around the neck, is thoroughly fixed in fashionable favour, particularly on young women, or on those with silver hair. Two young girls, evidently enjoying a birthday treat from their father and mother, were supping at a table near the black-satin lady. One wore white, with a bunch of silver snowdrops in the front of her dress, and a trimming of silver gauze veiled with white tulle from the black velvet band her throat; and a pendant consisting of one pear-shaped pearl. Her sister, older by a year, and yet with all the charm of the "flapper" visible beneath her conscious composure, wore a charming frock of pale blue and white striped chiffon, many with irrisponsible little frills bursting out of it here and there as though wearers' high spirits were typified. There was a slightly panier effect about the skirt, attained by a ruche of the same stuff just below the knees, which caught the skirt into a little bunch about it. The fair hair was tied with blue-silver gauze, and the Marie Antoinette band of velvet was diversified with a silver slide.

SOME EFFECTS IN FIGHUS.

The brilliant colours which obtain for the moment in evening dress are most effective when carried out in soft and cloudy materials. And such positive fabrics as satin and silk they are very apt to be becoming. Although the craze for veiled frocks has unfortunately died out, the beauty of the effects only to be obtained in this way has been recognised, and is retained in trimming.

Thus a lovely frock of pale blue and silver-shot gauze, made in the latest Marie Antoinette style, over a piece of fine deep-tinted lace, with fichu of mauve, blue, and pink chiffon, most softly arranged, with the coffee-tinted lace, and a narrow line of black velvet ribbon, where the lace meets fichu, matches a bow of black velvet on the lace petticoat.

IDEAS FROM FANCY DRESS.

Elaborate and beautiful as are evening frocks just now, it might be thought that fancy dress could lend no further variety to it; but it does, and picturesquely enough. This is because ordinary evening dress is now sufficiently wonderful to become fancy dress with the addition of a new head-dress or a different trimming. Therefore, at the many costume balls, which are still in the rage, one sees frocks which remind one of the best and most artistic evening gowns of the moment, and yet have that touch of individuality which makes them more successful than any ordinary evening gown. At a costume ball given the other evening there were two particularly lovely dresses. One was of emerald-green brocade, and patterned with gold in a wavy design, it ended in a long-pointed train. Over it was a tunic of dull royal blue chiffon, on which were Empire wreaths carried out in pale gold. That was all. There were no fancy trimmings, and the make was so absolutely simple, with the simplicity which all women long to be able to afford, and all men, in their ignorance, wonder why so many women do not follow. The effect of the dull, and yet intense, blue above the candid vividness of the emerald-green was mysterious and beautiful in a very high degree. The green and gold turban carried out the note of the dress, and was most properly worn. This last is a point everybody, but everybody has been wearing them, a fact which gives one a very low opinion of the intelligence of those women who adopt a fashion without waiting to see whether it suits them.

The Great Channel Swim

Burgess' Endurance and Vitality—

It is the big success, the great deed itself, that proves the wisdom of Burgess in employing Phosferine to provide the endurance and energy which enabled him to swim the Channel. To Phosferine the mighty Yorkshireman owes it that he has achieved more than any other living man, for on this historic occasion he used Phosferine to prepare for his daring and thrilling 23 hours' swim! Comparing his triumph with his previous failures, Burgess declares that the unlimited nerve force derived from Phosferine furnished the endurance to finish his swim successfully this time. Obviously Phosferine was the making of Burgess' great deed, and alike with other innumerable victors who have achieved renown by the invigorating aid of Phosferine, he frankly declares that Phosferine alone provides the force and vitality necessary for continuous mental and physical exertion.

How he made success sure.

Mr. T. W. Burgess, 30, Dover Road, Walmer, Deal, writes:—"I am very pleased to place on record my keen appreciation of Phosferine as a nerve and muscle tonic of the highest order. I have proved from experience the unfailing efficacy of this admirable remedy, and in preparing for this special demand upon my energies, it has been of incalculable benefit to me, and its recuperative effects immediately after my successful Channel Swim were excellent. Its sustaining and strengthening properties are very marked, and for nervous breakdown and feats of physical endurance I consider Phosferine is indispensable." Sept. 7, 1911.

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

BY
MRS. COULSON KERNAHAN.
(Author of "An Unwise Virgin," "The Fate of Felix," etc.).

Fear kept Kitty Lavenel rooted to the spot. Fear kept her eyes fixed on what was visible through the grating at her feet. She saw with abnormal clearness, for the cellar into which she gazed was but dimly lit by a candle. A man was loading a revolver; his face was white to ghastliness; his eyes were full of dogged despair. "He is going to kill himself!" she cried in horrified tones. "Oh, he must not!"

With a mighty effort, she freed herself from the spell that had held her motionless, and dropping down among the rank grass, and words that grew about the grating, she passed her two slim hands between the bars, in piteous appeal while she pressed a face as white as the man's own, close to the grating. "Don't! for my sake don't!" she called in a voice of agony.

What made her use this form of words, she did not know—then or after.

The man paused, and stared blankly at the hands stretched out to him. The girl's face he could not see, for winter twilight fast merging into darkness brooded on the desolate garden, and on the ruined house. But the frail hands shone white in the candle-light. They were the hands of a woman. Who could she be who had tracked him here, and who was imploring him for her sake not to take his life? In all the world he knew of no one to whom his death could matter.

"Give it to me—oh, give it to me!" pleaded the voice from the shadows. With shaking fingers he abstracted the cartridge, and placed the revolver in one of the outstretched hands.

With a sobbing cry, the girl drew the instrument of death through the bars. "Stay! I implore you! don't go away, you angel of pity!" broke from him. "I will come."

He must see this woman who had thought his life worth saving. But for her he would now be in eternity.

Kitty, half-fainting, crouched among the weeds, clutching the revolver. Had she wished to go, she could not have done so then. She was spent with emotion. The man who owed her his life, found her—a vague figure outlined in the shadows. He knew not whether she was young or old. He knew only that she, for some uncomprehensible reason, had saved him from committing the rash act he had planned so carefully—so secretly. He longed to look upon this woman who by her strange words "For my sake" had caused a star to rise in the blackness of his sky. He—the derelict, had heard these words—words that he could never have dreamed could have fallen on his ears.

He knelt down beside the crouching figure in the tangle of weeds. "You angel of pity!" he repeated, "why did you want to save me?"

"Thank God! I came—that I was in time," she gasped hysterically, as the revolver fell from her hands among the weeds. She clutched his arm, with weak trembling hands. "Promise me," she said, with a passionate tremor in her voice, "that you will never do anything like that again. Oh, why did you try to do it?"

"I am Richard Carnac," he told her, with bitterness, "is not that enough?"

She trembled, and started. "I have heard," she said almost in a whisper. "I vowed all those years that I ate out my heart in prison that directly I got out, I would come here to my ruined forsaken home, and die."

"But, Mr. Carnac," she demanded, "you have had a Free Pardon?"

He laughed with exceeding bitterness. "Yes," he answered, "they have graciously forgiven me for a crime I never committed. But it was not false imprisonment; it was not the awful loneliness, and bitter humiliation of those years—I could have got over that—it was the fact that my own familiar friends believed me guilty." His voice rose. "And she I was to have married turned her back on me. She married another. It was that, I tell you, which made me determine that when my time was up, I would come here—here where I had been a happy boy—and die. I should have done it too, but for you. Why did you come? How did you know?"

"I often come to this old garden in the evening," she told him. "I am not very happy, and lonely places are the most friendly. I saw a light through the grating, and I looked."

She paused, gulped down a sob, and went on bravely, "I knew what you were going to do, because of the despair in your eyes."

"And you were sorry! You—you, whom I have never even seen! You cared to save a stranger—a stranger who was playing the coward! Some day, God grant me a chance to do some big thing for you. You will tell me who you are, won't you?"

She answered him with great simplicity. "I am Kitty Lavenel. Dr. Lavenel's niece. I live with them down in the village. They had to take me, for there was nowhere else for me to go. Father died soon after mother, and there was no money. Oh, I am dreadfully sorry for them. There is a large family, and not really enough income. I am one too many."

"You poor little soul!" ejaculated Carnac, groping in the dark for one of the little hands which had been held out to him in pity and pleading, so short a time before—and finding it, he held it in a firm grasp. She offered no resistance. He was thinking hard.

"If I only could work and earn," she went on in the low sweet voice, which she had inherited from her Irish mother. "But I was indifferently educated, and had no settled home."

A clock down below in the village struck six. She started to her feet. "I must go," she exclaimed, "so good-bye, and remember you have promised."

In his silent, hard thinking, Carnac had promised more than she knew. He had registered a vow. "Would you care ever to meet me again?" he hazarded, "you have not asked even where I now go? Are we to be as ships that pass in the night?"

Had not this winter evening's sky been clouded so unkindly, Carnac would have seen the girl's sweet mouth a-quiver, as a child's when about to cry. Truly five tragic minutes can bring souls in closer touch than years of ordinary everyday intercourse! This man whose despairing face she had only seen for a moment, in the candle-light, would she knew he indelibly fixed on her heart. How could he ask her if she would care ever to meet him again? A great wave of sympathy for him had swept the girl off her feet. Falsely pardoned, granted the insult of a "Free Pardon," forsaken in his dire distress by the woman who was to have been his wife, Richard Carnac awoke in her a passion of feeling which was so new, so sudden, that she was almost afraid.

He repeated his question. "Would you care ever to meet me again—Kitty?"

Perhaps it was the tender way he spoke her name, which lost her her self-control. "Of course I care!" she answered with tears in her voice. "I—I did not know you were going away. I thought I should see you—often perhaps."

"It is for you to choose," he told her with emphasis. "But," he added, without giving her time to answer, "I must catch the eight o'clock train to London to-night, for since you have given me back to life, there are things I must see to, little woman. I must gather up the threads; then I will come back."

"Yes," she said faintly, "come back."

We take the same road till we come to the High Street," he next said, "so we will go together so far."

Perhaps it was the strain of the tragedy so near escape; perhaps the immediate separation to be faced, but they did not again speak to each other until the parting of the ways.

It was under a street lamp that they parted for ever.

Their eyes met. He saw a slim girl of about twenty, with nut-brown hair, and an oval face, in which were set a wonderful pair of Irish blue eyes. The sweet tremulous mouth reminded him of a child's. He noted every detail of form and feature. He saw that the black coat and skirt she wore were dowdy, and ill-fitting. Her hat, too, he could see, was shabby. He did not know till afterwards, how carefully he had noted everything about this girl.

He saw a man of thirty or so, whose face was strong without being handsome, whose hair was greying on the temples, whose brown eyes were wells of kindness. She saw that his tall figure had a slight stoop, which (although she did not know it) was the outcome of prison work.

"I'll see you again," he said, as he held her hands in his, and looked steadily into her fair face. "I'll see you again."

She said nothing, but her innocent eyes looked into his, with such pure sympathy and kindness that he nearly forgot himself.

I shall come right to your uncle's and ask for you," he told her. "In a month or so, I shall be back. I would rather no one knew I had been here to-night. No one in the village saw me. I went straight to my boyhood's home. I am not proud of my cowardice—now."

"I shall tell no one," she answered, understanding.

They parted, he taking the long white road which led to Bunstall station; she running along the High Street towards her uncle's house. She ran till she was out of breath, for her heart would disappear of her being out after dark alone.

It was about three o'clock the next morning that Dr. Lavenel coming home from a professional visit, roused all the household by shouting up the stairs, "Carnac House is ablaze!"

All the family, including the servants, rushed out on to the landing, at the top of the staircase, Kitty among the others.

"Oh!" she cried, forgetting herself, "that candle in the cellar! and the straw that lay there! Oh! we forgot the candle!"

"What are you talking about, Kitty?" demanded her aunt. "What candle? And what do you mean by 'we'?"

Kitty was at her wits' end to invent an answer. She had been betrayed into words she would have given anything to recall. She would not betray poor Richard Carnac. She would not lie; so she remained obstinately silent.

Dr. Lavenel and his wife discussed this extraordinary conduct of Kitty's in the solitude of their chamber after the fire of Carnac House had burned down, leaving a ruin; for there was no fire station at Carnac village, and the House itself had been left to the bats for years now, in fact ever since Richard Carnac had been a schoolboy, and his father and mother, being delicate, had migrated to the South of France, to die there eventually. The House was so large, and the neighbourhood so difficult of access, that it had never been let, and had steadily gone to ruin. It was scarcely worth the saving, said the villagers, even if a fire brigade had been near enough. Young Mr. Richard could scarcely have got anything out of it, even if the fire had not occurred. But how it had occurred was a mystery! It was a "muggy" December night, not a likely time for a big fire in a damp old mansion.

It was not with the loss of Richard Carnac's property, however, that Dr. and Mrs. Lavenel were concerning themselves in their bed chamber, after peace had been restored to the household. It was Kitty, and Kitty's strange words, and her stranger silence.

"It is most serious," said Dr. Lavenel gravely. "It looks as if the girl had been meeting someone there at Carnac House. She did come in late, Mary—you remember that, and she looked very excited, and out of breath."

"She asked to go straight to bed too," put in his wife. "Oh, John, I wouldn't have anything happen to the poor child for worlds! She is a sweet innocent little thing, young for her age. Oh, if she should come to harm I shall never forgive myself. I have let her go out alone so often—never thinking—oh John, who can the man be? There is no one at all likely in Carnac village. It must be somebody from Bunstall. Oh, it is terrible. It must be put a stop to. What can we do?"

Dr. Lavenel's face suddenly lightened. "I have a patient—old Mrs. Perkins, who is going to Hastings at once. I have advised it. She will remain there until the summer. She wants a young companion to read to her. Kitty shall go; and no one shall know her address. I will see to that. Whoever this young man is, he shall find we are too sharp for him. He can't be honourable, or he would come openly to the house. Kitty will get her senses back to London, and thence to Hastings with an ill-spoken banknote to buy clothes when she gets there. She went away still refusing to reveal what her strange words had meant, but nevertheless showing regret for the trouble she was causing. Her uncle and aunt were completely mystified.

The rooms Mrs. Perkins had taken were in Wellington Square, a pleasant spot with a large garden in the centre, surrounded by trees, that when spring should come, would be spread with a carpet of golden daffodils. It was quiet and peaceful, and within easy reach of the sea. Mrs. Perkins was a charming old lady, and took a fancy to Kitty at once when they met at Bunstall railway station, and Kitty, who was as we know of a very sympathetic nature, fell in love with Mrs. Perkins on the journey to London. The two travelled up alone in a first-class carriage while the maid travelled in a second-class compartment.

"I think it is so sweet of you, dear, to be willing to leave your young companions and come away to cheer an old woman who has no daughter," she said. "But I will try to give you a good time. There is a good theatre at Hastings, and some fine concerts at St. Leonard's Pier. We will go to all sorts of things. I can do a lot, if I can do it quietly. And, dear, you must let me provide for you as a daughter while with me. You must have pocket money—I thought, dear, twenty pounds, and then your frocks must be my concern."

Kitty could scarcely believe her good luck. She would be able to return the bank note to her uncle who so much needed it. How kind and tolerant her aunt and uncle had been when she had been so obstinately silent! They had not scolded, or reproached her; and she knew quite well that they must have believed she had been justified in being angry. But they had only granged to protect her. If they only knew! But some day they would anyway they would know part. How she would try to please Mrs. Perkins! Perhaps she would keep her. Oh, if she would! There were all those small cousins to be educated, and clothed! It would be such a help if she could be earning! She recalled with tear-dimmed eyes the loving welcome her aunt and uncle had given her—when she was—one too many!

It was when they were all established in Wellington Square, that Kitty discovered the fly in her pot of ointment. She did not know Richard Carnac's address. He would go to her uncle's to ask for her, and her uncle would refuse her address; for he would think at once that Carnac was the other referred to in that unfortunate "we." Oh, yes, she had said, "We forgot the candle." Her aunt would think Carnac dishonourable, to have met her in that underground way, and she—she had no means of letting Carnac know.

It was then that Kitty discovered that pity was akin to love; nay, she found that in her case it was love. Not to see him again! The thought was intolerable. One sunny morning—a week or so after coming to Hastings—Mrs. Perkins was seated in her bath chair on the sea front basking in the glorious sunshine, December though it was. She had had it drawn up near one of the shelters by the Baths, and had sent the man away for an hour. Kitty was sitting in the shelter slowly reading aloud to the old lady. All at once Mrs. Perkins interrupted Kitty.

"Now what you are reading makes me recall the case of poor Richard Carnac," she said. "I don't know why it should excite, except that it is a case of unjust suspicion. You don't know about the Carnacs, dear. You see you are a new-comer. But I remember when the big mansion, now so mysteriously burned down, was the home of the Carnacs. I remember young Richard—poor young Richard—as a mischievous schoolboy, but such a dear boy! I remember when he was appointed private secretary to Lord Wrothwell; I remember the forging of the cheques, of which poor Richard was accused, and convicted, and after years in prison, the truth came out, and he was found innocent. He is recently out of prison. When I feel better, I must try to find where he is, for I want to see him again, and to tell him that I at least always believed in him. You know, my dear, it was absolutely shameful the way his friends turned their backs on him! Even the girl he was engaged to—she married, and is now a widow. Poor Richard! Well, thank Heaven, he is not without money. He comes out of prison to find a sure income. The Carnacs always had plenty—which makes it all the more extraordinary that it should have been believed that Richard forged the cheques! Ah, my dear, it was a case of paid false witnesses. But go on reading—I want to hear how this case turns out."

Kitty with difficulty controlled her voice to go on reading.

The old lady listened with keen interest, her chin buried in the turned-up collar of her seal skin coat, her white hair gleaming in the brilliant winter sunlight, her beautiful old face radiating contentment. The sea glittered dazzlingly and one or two boats danced upon its

WITH FEVER AND AGUE.

BUT COULD NOT FIND PERMANENT CURE UNTIL HE TRIED THE PROVED REMEDY FOR MALARIA.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

When Mr. Charles Nelson first landed in Manila, to take up an appointment in the Government Secret Service, he had a constitution and physique of which any man could feel proud. But the arduous nature of his work in the enervating climate of the Philippines sapped his strength by degrees, until as has been the unhappy experience of thousands of others, he was a fit and easy prey for Malaria.

"After the Malaria got hold of my system the miseries I endured cannot be expressed in words," said Mr. Nelson when seen recently at his home, 167, Calle Eleano, Manila. "Attacks of Ague became of daily occurrence, and the fever so lowered my vitality that I suffered torments from Headaches and Neuralgia. Eventually the doctor sent me into hospital, where I remained a month.

Mr. Charles Nelson, of Manila, P.I.
(from a photograph)

"Upon my discharge I certainly felt better, but in a few weeks my old complaints reappeared. I was always ailing. One day it would be Headache, the next day Ague, and then a bout of Fever. No matter what medicine I took all were equally powerless to rid me of the Debility and Malaria.

Prompted by statements which I read in the newspaper that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had actually cured Malaria, I gave those Pills a trial. Even with the first bottle they improved my appetite, and as my digestive organs became strengthened I put on weight. The headaches disappeared by degrees, and the ague and fever diminished until they, too, entirely ceased. I kept on with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until I had fully regained my lost strength and weight."

The reputation of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as a remedy for all disorders arising from vitiated blood and nerve debility is world wide. Among the complaints they have cured, besides Malaria, are Anaemia, Indigestion, Skin eruptions, and the ailments peculiar to the weaker sex. Obtainable of dealers everywhere, and from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 24, Seaboard Road, Shanghai; one bottle for $1.50, six of $8 post free.

DECREASING NERVE FORCE.
HOW THE WEAKNESS MAY BE COMPLETELY RESTORED.
Few conditions are more depressing on the one hand and irritating on the other than those which arise from a gradual falling of nerve force. The unfortunate sufferer feels his strength gradually slipping away, and in every day, more conscious that he is less able to perform his allotted task until it seems as if the only course open to him is to resign his office. It is not that he wants relaxation, for he has as little energy for play as for work. The consequence is, he has an ever increasing tendency to withdraw from society, and that, as everyone knows, is the worst possible condition for any human being to be in. We all need to associate with our kind, that we may brush the cobwebs from our brain and maintain our interest in everything around us.
It is under such conditions that men, and women, too, tend to wreck their lives. To combat the feeling of weakness, they fly to alcohol on the one hand or to drugs on the other. The consequence is, that before they know where they are they have become slaves to habits from the thrall of which they would give anything to escape.

THIS IS THE REASON WHY.
Happily, an easy way exists out of the slavery, if it has, unfortunately, been acquired, as well as from the feeling of weakness. This is through the aid of Sanatogen. It is too late in the day to attempt to sing the praises of this preparation, for its reputation is world-wide, and, among doctors, it enjoys the reputation of a health restorative second to none.
Indeed, it is not going too far to say that the medical profession throughout the civilised world now looks upon it as a means of restoring health, and even of saving life, when everything else has failed.
As a matter of fact, the number of cases in which doctors have placed it on record that, in their unqualified opinion, Sanatogen has saved the life of their patients, may be counted in hundreds if not in thousands.
Seeing how powerful Sanatogen is, and that its power is primarily directed to the nervous system, it is obvious that it must exercise a profound influence for the better in all cases of decreasing nerve force. It is quite easy to understand why this must be so. Every nerve—and all nervous tissue—needs a certain amount of phosphorus to maintain its condition of health. When this phosphorus is used up, too rapidly, through the individual making too great overdrains on it, a feeling of nerve weakness is established. To overcome this weakness the phosphorus must be restored to its original quantity.
The situation is precisely comparable with a man overdrawing his account at the bank. Before he can use his bank again he must make good the overdraft.

REMARKABLE MEDICAL OPINIONS.
Nothing restores the overdraft of phosphorus to the nervous system so rapidly or so easily as Sanatogen. The reason is that the phosphorus it contains is in the same form as is found in the brain and nervous system, and it is chemically combined with the nitrogenous or body-building portion of pure milk, which experience and many experiments have proved is the best possible substance for the purpose.

Sanatogen's power as a nerve tonic has been attested by many of the most distinguished men in the world. In this connection is the following analysis by Sir Charles A. Cameron, C.B., M.D., F.R.C.P., D.P.H., Medical Officer of Health and Public Analyst, Dublin, who writes:—"I have arrived at the conclusion that Sanatogen is a substance of the highest nutritive value, containing, as it does, a large amount, relatively speaking, of organic phosphorus that is phosphorus which is offered to the tissues in exactly the form in which it can be easily absorbed. It is an excellent nerve food."
Dr. Andrew Wilson, who was, himself, restored to complete health by Sanatogen, has also written:—"Sanatogen will be found an excellent remedy in all 'rundown' states of the system. The overworked man or woman will benefit from its use, provided it be taken regularly. Its advantage over the ordinary tonics, ranging from iron and quinine to arsenic and strychnine, is that its use does not derange digestion but, contrariwise, assists enfeebled appetite. It repairs the wear and tear of the most vital parts of our frames and, above all, it gives to brain and nerve their essential food in precisely the form in which they are capable of readily receiving and assimilating it."

Andrew Wilson, which will be sent, free,

surface, near the shore, ready for hire.
Gay pedestrians paced the promenade, in fantastic headgear, and carrying enormous muffs, though coats were thrown open on account of the warmth.
"I would like to live here at Hastings altogether," interrupted the old lady.
"It is one of the most cheering places
I know. But I couldn't be so far from your good clever uncle, you know, Kitty.
Because you see I am really a sort of an invalid, though lots of people won't believe it because of my spirits. Go on, Kitty!"
"That is the end," Kitty answered laughing.
"Well, dear me!" exclaimed the old lady, "these modern authors do leave off abruptly. But, Kitty—run across the road to Brown and Woodleys, and get another book. I do love being read to!"
Kitty, who was now gowned perfectly in an exquisite shade of purple, with a white ermine stole and muffs, and a hat with a wonderful ostrich feather (which was her chief pride) ran across to Brown and Woodleys to find a new book. Mrs.
Perkins looked after her as she crossed the road, and marvelled at the change:
better clothes had made in her. Kitty was certainly a beauty, though in her shabby ill-fitting coat and skirt she had been merely interesting.

Kitty entered Brown and Woodleys, and making her way to the end of the shop, where the library was situated, started, flushed, and turned away to examine some pretty wares on a centre table. Her heart was beating in tumult.
She became pale. A nice-looking girl came from behind the counter to attend to her.
"I am only looking at the things,"
she said with a great effort. "I am going to select a book from the library presently."

The girl left her with a pleasant smile, and she continued to examine the dainty trifles. Her heart gave a leap that was pain, as a man and a handsome woman in fashionable widow's weeds passed her on their way out. The woman was carrying a book from the library, and a large bunch of violets. The man was Richard Carnac. He did not even see Kitty, so nearly was he speaking to the woman at his side. The woman was casting adoring glances at him. All this Kitty saw as in a nightmare.

With an effort that was almost superhuman, Kitty walked to the shelves where the books were arranged, and selected a novel at random, then crossed the street once more to the shelter near which Mrs.
Perkins awaited her. There to her utter confusion stood Richard Carnac, to whom Mrs. Perkins was holding forth vigorously.
"Ah!" she said, seeing Kitty, "this is Mr. Carnac, whom I knew as a boy, and he was sweet enough to recognise an old woman!" Mr. Carnac, this is Miss Lavenel."

Their eyes met. Kitty extended a hand, but her face was as expressionless as if carved in marble. An anxious cloud passed over the young man's face.
It was as if a sharp frost had come in summer. Then he suddenly brightened.
Of course Kitty was acting a part. But —how lovely, how altogether adorable Kitty was, and how fortune was favouring him, that he should meet her again so soon! Kitty—ah! but for her he should not be basking in the sunlight at Hastings, she had given him life—life with all its possibilities.

"Kitty, dear," said Mrs. Perkins, "is my chairman coming? It is time, I know, and I have asked Mr. Carnac to lunch with us. I do hope that Stevens has remembered to give my orders for a luncheon. It is curious, but Stevens is a perfect maid in the way of looking after me personally, but she nearly always forgets messages. Mr. Carnac, I hope you won't mind if the luncheon lacks anything."

Carnac smiled a little grimly. He, fresh from prison fare! It was really rather an irony! The chairman's arrival put a stop to this speech, which might have gone on for any length of time otherwise.
After luncheon the real difficult position presented itself; and Mrs. Perkins was the instigator of the situation, albeit unconscious that she was so.
"Kitty," she broke out, as soon as she had pushed away her untouched coffee hooket, "The Art of Living," by Dr.
Andrew Wilson, which will be sent, free,
to all mentioning this paper on application to A. WILKINS & Co., 6, Kiukiang Road, Shanghai.
Sanatogen can be obtained of all Chemists.

He saw that he had made a mistake.
The girl was evidently herself now, and her modest reserve, which had gone to the winds in his extremity, had reasserted itself.
"I fear I have taken a liberty—a lot of liberties," he broke out stammering almost. "I called you 'Kitty'—but, oh, well, I had best make a clean breast of everything."
Now he is going to tell me all about her," thought poor Kitty.
He went on. "I did not mean to tell you for ever so long. I wanted you to know me better."
Now it is coming," thought Kitty with a choke in her throat.
"I love you, Kitty. Love can be born in one such tragic hour as we shared, and I want to ask you to take the life you saved! Kitty, if you know, if you only knew how I loved you all at once, as we held each other's hands in that desolate garden! I will not press you, darling.
But will you give me a chance to win
you?"
She began to cry weakly.
"I was in Brown and Woodleys," she sobbed. "I thought—" he exclaimed.
"Now I understand," he exclaimed.
"Yes, I met Ada by appointment here at Hastings. Her husband left her badly provided for. For the sake of the past, I persuaded her to accept a small income from me. Poor girl, she needed a friend!
And I, well I thought I should like to help her for old time's sake; and because something or someone had made me feel I wanted to be generous. I shall not see her again."
Kitty's joy broke forth in all its simplicity. She was one of those natural transparent girls of which some are still left to us.
"I can't help being glad!" she cried.
"Why?" he asked, passing an arm about her.
"Can't you guess?" she said.

CAN BE CURED ONLY BY PURIFYING THE BLOOD.
For cleansing the blood of all impurities, from whatever cause arising, there is no other medicine just as good as Clarke's Blood Mixture—that's why in thousands of cases of skin and blood diseases it has effected truly remarkable cures where all other treatments have failed.

The Editor of the "FAMILY DOCTOR," London's popular medical weekly, writes:
"We have seen hosts of letters bearing testimony to the truly wonderful cures by Clarke's Blood Mixture. It is the first Blood Purifier that Science and Medical Skill have brought to light, and we can with the utmost confidence recommend it to our subscribers

Remington Typewriter

IS THE
PERPETUAL PIONEER

The No. 10 and No. 11 VISIBLE-REMINGTON MODELS are the latest expressions of Remington leadership. They represent the sum total of all typewriter achievement—past and present.
They contain every merit that the Remington has always had, and every merit that any writing machine has ever had.
They contain, in addition, new and fundamental improvements that no typewriter has ever had; among them the FIRST COLUMN SELECTOR, the FIRST BUILT-IN TABULATOR and the FIRST KEY-SET TABULATOR. These improvements are the latest contributions to typewriter progress, and they are Remington contributions—every one.
The Remington, the original pioneer in the typewriter field, is the present day pioneer in all new developments of the writing machine.
